

Pause before you chuck 'em

Each month, more than 45 tons of CDs become obsolete and end up in landfills and incinerators – and in landfills they can take centuries to biodegrade. Recycling these no longer wanted items is easier than skipping to the next song. Here's how . . .

Greendisk Technotrash Pack-It – recycle any electronic waste in your home (up to 20 pounds) through this mail-in service ($7).

More Info here: www.greendisk.com/gdsite/pack-ITservices.aspx

Ripstyles Luxury service – where it'll burn your albums for you and recycle your jewel boxes (prices vary depending on volume).

More Info here: www.ripstyles.com

ACT Recycling – recycle videocassettes and computer disks through an organization that provides jobs to disabled people.

More Info here: www.actrecycling.org/donations

Many nonprofits such as Goodwill will take your old CDs, DVDs, and computer games.
